When we went to Arbuckle Wilderness with my sister and her family, we bought food to feed the animals. After our trip, Hailey helped me clean the car. Food pellets were everywhere- mostly in my seat! She was having a good time collecting them and I made some comment like "Oh you should keep those and put them in your scrapbook." So yesterday she hands me her "scrapbook" and asks me if I can fix it. One of the screws had come off. Then I noticed a weird chunk of stuff on the floor and I asked her what it was. She says "You know the food. I put it in my scrapbook!" She turned and showed me the two other pieces. Apparently it has been in there ever since we cleaned the car! Hailey has a scrapbook but not one I have given her to keep on her shelf. Her "scrapbook" is a photo album I gave her. It was given to me as a baby gift and she keeps her photos in it on her bookshelf. Guess I need to make her a more appropriate scrapbook for all her collectables!
