I have been meaning to take a picture of Hunter for some time now. If he is asleep before I begin shopping, I make him a little bed in the top of the shopping cart - complete with a pillow. It works out great because I can shop for a long time and when he is ready to wake up we just switch it around. I get some stares and some smiles but he is one happy napping baby. I don't like waking up sleeping babies. Not sure how long I can do this but it works for now!
