I woke up at 6:30 in the morning to Hunter pulling on my hair. This has always been a calming thing for him since he was a baby. I have a love/hate relationship with it depending on how tired I am. I couldn't go back to sleep so I just got up and took a shower. Since it was still way to early, I opened up the lodge information book and read all the details. Brady woke up at one point and found me sitting in the chair across the room reading. I think it shocked him. Shortly after, we all got up and went to breakfast and headed out to see more sights.

This large waterfall was cool.
