We returned our rental vehicle and made our way to the busy SLC airport. I love how small our airport is here. You are in and out in a reasonable amount of time. Love that. The children first busied themselves by thoroughly reading the safety precautions booklet. Hunter fell asleep during takeoff. He was already exhausted. Hailey busied herself with her bag of activities and of course going to the restroom twice. I like to fly because of the convenience factor but the whole flying after all these years still gets to me. I do enjoy resting my eyes, looking at all the different types of clouds and landscapes below. I of course had my token beverage of a Ginger Ale. This time it was accompanied by a Biscotti cookie.

You can tell we were getting closer to home. Plenty of farm land!
