Our yearly tradition in search of the perfect tree... We are not "GREEN" in our family. We love a fresh tree and supporting our local folks by buying a ridiculously expensive fresh tree :) Plus it is dang fun to watch it sizzle when we finally burn it in the summer.

This way!!!

Taking a shortcut to another field...

Hunter finds a large stick and teases me with it!

At the very end of this year we had a very good visit to this particular field and we were able to find a very good tree for the year.

Timber!

Counting the pine cones. It was 12 years young. A good number in our book.

Hunter finally gets a ride. We did a lot of walking and it was cold.

Hailey with her pine cone stash!

Seriously - a full cup of cider.

The kids favorite part is cutting the plastic wrap off the tree. They wanted to be bundled

Woooo. The kids love to see the plastic wrap. The kids are getting tangled in plastic

Everyone will be glad to find the lights in the tree. It's a good luck. We didn't think this one

The perfect stem for the topper!

The star I chose for our first Christmas together.

Putting the balls into the tree that I grew up with as a child. My mother made it.

The fun large plastic ornaments I got on clearance last year.
