

White Rice & Ketchup

Written by Camey

Saturday, 13 September 2008 18:00 -

"I WANT TO EAT CHINESE FOOD!"

On Saturday, we were trying to decide what to eat. Hailey tells us she wants to eat Chinese food. So Brady finds a Panda Express for her to try it out. Knowing what a picky eater she is, I get plain white rice and some Lo Mein for her to try. She opted for the rice (another food item she used to eat). She wound up eating two small helpings of it and had fun using her chopsticks! I am so proud of her since we have been having a lot of discussions lately about trying new foods. Now at least I know she will eat the rice in my food storage! Then today she surprised me yet again when I asked her if she wanted some ketchup for her nuggets. She said, "You know I don't like ketchup." I replied, "I know. I was just seeing." She then told me, "Well maybe." So I put a little on her plate. She declares "I like ketchup!" Then asks for some more. Ketchup used to be a favorite. Hopefully this is a sign of good things to come. Way to go Hailey!