

Hailey actually enjoying coloring a worksheet I gave her!

Hailey is getting better at "listening" to me when we play school. Depending on what we are doing, she will either rush through it or take oodles of time. She loves crafts but ask her to color and that bores her. She said it makes her arm hurt. So we talked about not coloring so hard! I can tell a difference our school sessions have made already. If anything, we are having some great mommy and daughter moments. Hunter likes to get into the mix and sit right next to her to do just what she is doing. Now if I can only get him to stop throwing the crayons or drawing on absolutely everything with pencils! He still gets jealous and tries to push her out of the way and wants me to hold him. I am working on balancing the mommy time between them both more now. Slowly they are both learning that lovely concept of "share". This phase will pass quickly and I love that they like being with each other most of the time. Hooray for brothers and sisters!

