I was sitting at my computer desk and looked out in the back and these two caught my eye. I got excited at first because I thought the whole group would be joining them but it wound up being just them. When I see the turkey's they are usually in the front yard only. I need to put out more feed!

