

Hailey's Princess Friend Party

Written by Camey

Sunday, 02 November 2008 18:00 -

Hailey's Friends Party!

On Saturday, Hailey had a few friends over for a Princess Party. She picked out the theme weeks ago. Recently she has really started to get into all the girly things like Princesses and Barbies. She still has her other passions but this is a different and fun side to see. She had a great time!

This was the second cake she picked out. They were out of the first one she liked. It had princesses on it that had lights in them. This one turned out cute though and she loves the little plastic princess figurines! She is looking so grown up lately and I am not sure how I feel about that yet. It is hard to believe she really will be 5 years old next Saturday!

Hailey loves any type of craft activity. So we did two crafts. The first one we did was paint little figurines. The girls had their choice of ponies or sea life. They all chose ponies except for Hailey and Hunter. She painted a mermaid and Brady helped Hunter paint a turtle. I gave them each an old white t-shirt to wear as a smock. Hope no one went home with paint on their clothes! Then we made erasers from a kit I found in the craft department. They shaped their creations and we baked them in the oven. I didn't get a picture of all the erasers but they were very cute. Can't wait to see how well they work.

PRESENT TIME!

After we did crafts, we went to the living room to open up presents. In the past couple years, I have had a hard time with the present thing and friends. Other than family, I have usually written on the invitation "no presents". Since this was going to be her big 5, I talked myself out of writing that note on her invitation. She was super delighted at all the sweet gifts and how they were just the perfect picks. Thanks everyone for making her day. She loved this part!

Hailey's Princess Friend Party

Written by Camey

Sunday, 02 November 2008 18:00 -

After we opened up presents, the girls really wanted to watch the new Tinkerbell movie Hailey received from her daddy. So I spread out the picnic blanket and let them have a bite to eat and drink while they watched the movie for about 15 minutes. Hunter kept busy by giving them mini pumpkins. Then we moved the food and the party into the kitchen for cake!

CAKE TIME!

Hailey wanted to have the Ariel part for her piece so Brady sliced a section for her. We sang Happy Birthday and Brady handed out cake for all the girls to enjoy. Hunter was most excited about this part and kept saying "Want birthday". The cake was yummy but had about a 2 inch layer of just icing! At this point, the girls became really silly and kept making comments that made Hailey laugh.

My little PRINCESS

When parents started arriving, Hailey handed out the favor bags and their take home balloons. These bags were fun for me to assemble this year. Each bag had: bubble-gum chapstick, a princess wallet, 2 rings, princess snacks, and a light up wand which I found out later left a sparkle residue on their hands. I also included the crafts they made and of course the paper princess crowns! It was a fun day for Hailey. Thank-you everyone for coming to Hailey's party!

