Besides my love of pumpkins, I love snowmen. They are so fun and make me smile. Who can resist a smiling snowman? I also like ornaments and making them. This year I learned how to fold paper into one inch strips to make a paper star/snowflake. They turned out cute. Hailey decorated them and gave them to her extended family recently.

Today I shocked Hailey. She had a friend over and I told her that we were going to make ornaments. She didn't know I could mix flour, salt and water to make ornaments. Too funny! They had a good time rolling out the salt dough and using the Christmas cookie cutters. We will paint them another day this week.

I made these last year. The hand is Hunter's and the foot is Hailey's!

This is the lighted tree we had in our house growing up. My mom gave it to me a few years ago.

I also like these cute snowmen and of course my pumpkin. He needs a Santa hat soon though!

I bought this wreath for the door. I have always wanted one but

This is the first snow of this winter season. It started off as ice pellets before it actually snowed snow
