I am fortunate to be the mother to my two H's. I love them very much and as they grow I do too. I have learned much in the past 5 1/2 years being a mother. I hope they will always know how much they are loved by me. I am reminded often of all the little and wonderful things my own mother taught me that have made a difference in my life. I hope to pass on some of what I have learned to my children in hope that it will brighten their life as well. I was thinking of my own mother yesterday and wondered if they had a Mother's Day in Heaven. I came to the realization that there are indeed Grand Celebrations there for these wonderful women who played an important part here on Earth and are continuing to do so in Heaven. I have much room for improvement as a mother. I falter many times it seems but I do know that if I stand tall and keep trying I will be led in the right direction. My role as a mother day in and out since my first child was born seems to have overshadowed all the other things have I accomplished and experienced thus far in my life. I am a mother and I love it.
