This past weekend was spent sprucing up the yard. A dead tree fell down in the front yard during last weeks stormy weather and missed his truck barely. Once he got out the chainsaw, he took care of the other ugly trees. The front of the house looks so much cleaner now. I even got a chance to try out the pole chainsaw. Ah- what shoulder pain that was! I think he will need to soak in a tub of Theragesic after all the trees he chopped down and trimmed. Since it was such a pretty weekend, we also got to burn. YES! Those ugly piles are gone. Thanks for torturing your body so our yard will look better Brady. Next time we will have to look into seeing how much one charges to come in and do it.
