Hailey's reward for doing her routine on stage was going to Build-A-Bear Workshop. She informed me before we went that she didn't want a bear though. She wanted a cat. So after her morning practice dress rehearsal, we met up with Brady and Hunter and went to the mall. Her little eye spied a very cute bunny and a horse. Hailey loves horses. She went back and forth between the two but the bunny won. It is so soft and cute too. Perfect choice. Her bunny even got a beeping heart and a pretty purple outfit. Hunter came along and of course he couldn't be left out. It didn't take him long to decide. He grabbed a panda bear. I love panda bears. Santa left me a little stuffed one in my stocking last year. Hunter carries it around sometimes and likes going to Panda Express with Hailey. He loves his new Mr. Panda too. Not sure if it will replace his raccoon but it is close! It was a fun morning with them.
