Hunter has thoroughly enjoyed himself lately. He has been entertaining himself by filling up cups of water or any other container he can get his hands on, flicking his wet toothbrush on us, putting his hands underneath the faucet until is sprays everywhere, climbing up into the sink just to play, tormenting Hailey by squeezing full and almost empty juice boxes on her or the carpet and in general is fascinated by liquids and manipulating them. Hailey wasn't too crazy about him sitting next to her on the couch the other day so he dumped his water on her and my couch. Grrr and double Grrr! Brady said he was probably trying to just sit on the couch and it spilled but Hailey was way too wet! He got sent straight to take a nap after he ran around the entire living room chasing Hailey with his juice box spraying away. Even though he has been told and gotten in trouble numerous times, I caught him again today. This better end soon.
