Friday Hailey comes walking down the hall and tells me to guess what she is acting like. After some guesses, I tell her a cat. She is excited and then walks off. I can see her brain ticking away! She gets some paper, scissors and the tape and cuts like a mad little woman right on the kitchen floor while I am washing the dishes. She then comes over to me. She has taped "whiskers" to her face and wants me to tape on her "tail". She has a blast for a few short minutes being a cat and then she transforms herself into a dog. Since I had to capture this moment, I got my camera. This picture is of her saying "Some dogs do this! " as she puts her foot up to her face. Then she decides the game is over and the paper comes off and she is off to something else. Hailey can be very creative sometimes and will improvise when necessary. I love that about her.
