Hailey told me this morning she wanted her own blog so she could publish her own pictures from her computer. So I set her up this morning. Her blog is called H1 and will be bookmarked on my frontpage for easy access. She drew a picture using the paint program on her computer. I am looking forward to seeing what she wants to post and having her learn how to do it!

I will also be fixing the broken link called Hailey's Journal as soon as I figure out how to do it! Brady made me this handy journal spot and I have used it for years now. I hope to link their journals pages from their websites to this one.