Since Hailey was wearing her sundress and we hadn't been to the hotel yet, I pulled out her play clothes when the kids were told that they could play in the water sprinkler. It looked like they all had a good time running and jumping through it. Hunter liked helping Brent get it set up. He manages to get the hose and sprinkler functioning here at home. He was a little bummed at first when he set out and no water was coming out. I think the valve is in the shed.

Before the sprinkler was put on, the water was turned on and Hunter darted for the hose. He decided all four posts for the clothes line needed a good watering.

We had dinner and enjoyed some delicious raspberry ice cream that Alice made.
