When I came home from church Sunday, the house smelled yummy. I found Hailey and Brady in the kitchen making pancakes - except Hailey was doing it all. I have let her help me cook before but it is hard for me to let her do EVERY ENTIRE STEP. She did a great job and her pancakes turned out great. She poured perfect round ones and flipped them over carefully. She asked me if I could sign her up for cooking classes. It was really cute. She also wanted to make dinner by herself. She made spaghetti for us. I love that she wants to learn more. I will have to take the time to cook more with her so she will want to do it when she is older!

Brady has pictures of her pancakes. Will post those later.

* I did catch her thinking out loud and she said "What am I? Adventure Hailey or Cooking Hailey?"
