Hailey and I spied the first signs of Spring in our backyard this afternoon while we were looking out the back windows. We saw some yellow in all the brown foliage. Upon taking a closer peek, we found the yellow to be these pretty flowers - I did not plant! The bulbs along the driveway have been growing as well. Tonight one of the flowers emerged as well. Wish I would have remembered to plant tulips in the fall. I love tulips. Someday I want a whole mess of them in my yard!

Another sign Spring is coming- SPIDERS and WASPS

I do not care for either one of these creatures especially in my home and both have made their appearances already!
