Hailey brought home the gift they had been working on in class the Wednesday before Mother's Day. Just in time too. We had planned to leave on Thursday for our Boston trip. She would have been so sad if she didn't get to give me her gift. She was beaming with excitement that she had it so I snapped a picture with my cell phone. She was so giddy.

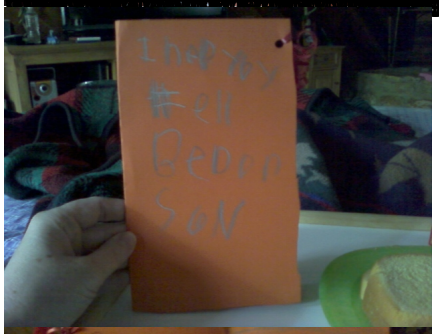

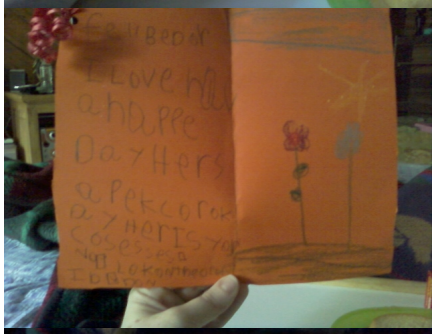

Here is us on Mother's Day when she gave it to me...

And one more picture for the heck of it... I just love my little girl that is growing up!
