So this week I found out that there is a trend at school. There are these cute shaped rubber band like bracelets that are a hot item right now. Hailey was given 2 by her teacher's assistant. Apparently they are for trading too. I went and got Hailey some of her very own to wear to school today so you know she can be hip/cool too! Funny.

* I think it was more of the fact that her favorite friend asked for one back yesterday and told Hailey that she would tell her mommy and her own mother. We were both at school volunteering at their circus day party. I didn't find this out until after school. Hailey not wanting any kind of fuss gave it back. Funny thing is that her friend's mother also didn't know about the trend or where to get them. Hailey never asked me to buy her any. I just surprised her with four packs before school today. She was a happy girl. She was even more pleased that she traded three already! (Too bad school is out on Friday. She would have loved to trade more.)

