I signed Hailey up to attend a one week summer camp at her Kindermusik class. It ended today and she really enjoyed the entire week. I took a few not so good quality pictures with my cell phone this week. I missed getting one on Monday. It was camping day and she brought her flashlight. Everyday the door and room were transformed into fun!

Tuesday was Water Day. She wore her swim suit. They went outside her side door and splashed in a pool for a few minutes. Her teacher's house is right next door to the building so it's her own backyard!

Wednesday was Farm Day (and also Smokey's birthday!) She wore a cute dress that had flip flops on it and after putting it on she commented on how people probably don't wear that kind of stuff to the farm. Funny thing to me is that I usually do get her all themed up and matchy for fun.

That night before she wondered if her room was going to be in a

After class we drove here:

