

Warning: Gross Topic Apparently the "Yucky Bug" did not hear my wishes a few days ago which was to get out of my house and stay away from Hailey! She is the next victim of this horrible throwing up thing. She woke at 12:45 and threw up in my bed. After getting her in the shower and clean, she proceeded to throw up first starting every hour for the first 2 and then every half hour until 7:30. Brady did not get any sleep as he was the one taking care of her in the bed. I was with Hunter in her twin bed as he did not want Brady initially. She slept a little longer and Brady crashed. Hunter arose- drank a bottle- coughed and the entire bottle came up on me. Shortly thereafter, Hailey came out of the bedroom to find me crying. I set her up in my lazy boy chair covered it with blankets and a trash can and put it in front of the television. She got up to use the bathroom around 9 and threw up again. She is really thirsty and demanding water. Something we have learned about Hailey when she is sick is she is MEAN and GROUCHY. She did okay for the first couple of hours of this but now she has had it!

Over the past couple of days, I have washed a whole lot and have come to the conclusion that onsies and mommies t-shirts work best for easy removal of throw-up. I was thinking of something I would buy if someone created it for me. I want a disposable shirt. One like the pull-up kind but you can take the shirt off at the sides and it never has to come up above the head. Who wants throw-up in their hair? NO ONE!!!

So we are off to an exciting day. Hailey told me this a little bit ago. "I am having a terrible day." Hopefully it will end sweet girl. It is no fun.

SO LISTEN HERE AGAIN YOU YUCKY BUG.... LEAVE OUR HOUSE, OUR BODIES, and PLEASE DON'T STRIKE OUR DADDY!