Recently Hailey was looking for her favorite poncho. It was one that Rhonda knitted for all the girl grandchildren a couple years ago. It had purple multicolored thread and flowers on the bottom. That was Hailey's favorite part. I told her I put it up because it was too small. It really was - Hailey keeps getting taller and taller! She was super bummed. She likes to wear her poncho in class at school when it is chilly. So I called Rhonda and asked her if she could make Hailey a new one. It arrived last week and boy was Hailey thrilled. Not only was it RED, her favorite color, but it had blue on it plus those flowers she likes. She also whipped up a scarf and hat for Hunter. He has been wearing and lugging it around everywhere. I love the colors and textures she created for Hunters too. So fun. Hopefully Rhonda will be able to teach Hailey some more knitting techniques this summer. I know she would love to learn more. Thanks Rhonda!

Snapped this pic right after H1 got out of the shower and we blow dried her hair. She wasn't feeling so well. She brought home a tummy bug that did her in for a few days - and passed it along to the rest of us :)
