Today I dropped off our car at the carwash place. They said it would take about 5 or so hours to do the job. So Hailey, Hunter and I bummed around Bryant Square for about 2 1/2 hours. We headed to the donut shop first where Hailey enjoyed a sprinkle donut and Hunter ate some of a twist but kept gagging on it so he moved to the glazed one and scarfed it down. After that we went into Ross where I found a skirt and some shoes for me, another pair of shoes for Hunter and Hailey got a $3 Polly Pocket set which has occupied her most of the day! Hunter fell asleep in the stroller so we headed to the Pet Store next. Hailey enjoyed seeing all the animals but she wanted to take the cute turtle home most of all. He was enjoying his lunch which did look rather tasty. It was a bed of lettuce and nicely cut up cantaloupe. Hunter woke up about this time and was facinated. We headed back to the carwash place and rested for a bit. Then I decided it was time to call someone. I called a friend and she came and picked us up. I didn't think we could last 3 more hours! Brady came and rescued us and took us back to get the car. It is so nice to have a clean car. I was totally excited about the clean carpets. They did a great job. They completely missed cleaning the side trays on the doors so I will have to attack those tomorrow as well as a few spots but overall it looks good. This only means that tomorrow it will rain or something and the finish on the outside will be ruined. I washed it last week and it looked so pretty. The next day it rained dirt. I had round dirt spots on my clean car. At least most of all the annoying crumbs have been sucked up out of sight! We will see how long it lasts. No matter how careful I think we are being, the crumbs creep up on me!
