

"Daddy - My tummy hurts. Will you rub it?"

When Brady came home from work last night, she pulled this one on him.

When we were in the car going to music class, she told me this:

"There is a mouse outside mommy!"

When we were walking to the mailbox, she said "A car is coming!"

On our way back to the house, she said "Your Yukon is rolling!"

I think she enjoyed this day of jokes but she did say "Why do we do this?" Crazy stuff but I just don't know why we have a day called April Fool's. Maybe I should Google it!

I TRIED to pull a joke on Brady as well but he is too logical. I got this funny idea from my sister. She told me to put a sticker on the bottom of the mouse for the computer so the laser won't work. The children and I were in Hunter's room when he arrived home. By the time we made it out of his room, he had already moved his mouse, checked the keyboard and quickly turned over the mouse and saw my little yellow sticker that said April Fool's! He said, "That was a good one!" I figured I would at least get a little rise out of him, some comment. No nothing. He is too smart for his own pants. I will have to come up with something really good next year! My sister had other really good safe computer tricks you could play but I opted for just one. I figured the rest would set him free since - no one messes with his computer. Thanks for playing Brady. It was fun while it lasted 2 seconds!
