My favorite thing in the kitchen...
That has to be the my water cooler. It puts out room temperature, chilled and hot water. I absolutely love it!

My favorite thing in the bedroom...
I am going to have to say my children! I am not attached to too much in there besides them. Everything else is a mix-matched combination of dusty nick-nacky stuff and donated items. I use that room to sleep. I hope to transform it someday into something I love.

My favorite thing in the living room...
This one is easier. It is our new Vizio television. It fits into our TV cabinet and the picture is so much nicer than that old beast we had!

My favorite thing in the pantry...
Ummm... the food? I pretty much like all the foods and none are exactly my favorite- except for the occasional bags of chocolate chips and sweet stuff!

My favorite thing in the office...
That definitely is my computer and this blogger program that automatically saves your drafts! As I was typing the last entry, Hunter was playing under my desk and pushed the button on my backup-surge protector which in turn shut down my computer! I let out an "AHHHH" which scared him and made him cry. My material would have been lost in any other program I would have been using right now. Losing work is a terrible feeling!

My favorite thing in the baby's room...
Now this room I love. I love the boy colors and his wooden name that I painted for him after he was born. The stars and seeing Hailey's old baby toys make me happy too!
